Regarding the line "my dad's and my story" in the prologue of chapter one, that story, as many of you probably already knew, followed the plot of Boruto: Naruto the Movie. It wraps up in this volume with a slightly different ending than the film version, and leads to Boruto's "my story."

From here on out is unknown territory that no one has ever seen. Of course, I'm not going to spoil it here.

Other than to say that it'll be super cool.

My father is a kind of superhuman whose report cards were all A's. He's a university professor, and there is nothing that he does not know.

While it's something I am proud of now, it was tiresome when, as a child, I would only hear, "Well, aren't you your father's son," no matter how hard I worked.

However, once I became an adult and surpassed the age he had been back then, I came to realize, "Ah, my old man had experienced lots of hardship." That it's not a cakewalk at all. Such feelings have been heavily piled on Boruto. I feel like I'm some weird relative who gives unwelcome advice. (laughs)

STORY

The Great Ninja War that shook the world and shed much blood is now history. Naruto has become the Seventh Hokage, and the people of Konohagakure Village are enjoying peace. Yet Naruto's son Uzumaki Boruto has a glum life, perhaps due to his father's too-great influence.

Rebelling against Naruto while simultaneously craving his praise, Boruto decides to enter the Chunin Exam along with his teammates Sarada and Mitsuki.

However, the exam is more intense than Boruto has imagined. Boruto ends up secretly using a prohibited Scientific Ninja Tool and is stripped of his shinobi status by his father.

Just then, members of the Ohtsutsuki Clan attack the arena! Naruto protects the village but is abducted. Sasuke then heads to Naruto's rescue with Boruto and the other Kage in tow. When his situation starts looking unfavorable, Momoshiki devours his companion and transforms into a fearsome figure!
